MLSListings Adds Remine: A Real Estate Platform with Modern Digital Workflows

Remine is a Benefit for MLSListings Subscribers

Silicon Valley, CA. August 22, 2019— MLSListings now offers Remine to MLSListings subscribers. Remine is a modern real estate platform that connects agents, lenders and consumers on a digital real estate journey.

The power of the Remine platform is that agents can now access multiple types of data in one system and gives them the ability to deliver a digital real estate experience that spans the full range of options to today's consumer. When an agent selects a particular property, one click reveals a snapshot of the property details on a map. A second click offers a view of the full MLS details and public record information available on one page. These two clicks create a summary of data including property values, equity, schools, community information, mortgage history and more.

The Remine platform also has a client portal that makes sharing a property or creating a saved search easy. Remine provides real estate professionals with new data insights and digital workflows to win more business and engage with clients faster and easier than before.

"By connecting people and property, adding Remine to our already robust tool kit is part of our ongoing commitment to delivering a wide range of complimentary tools that help agents succeed," said James Harrison, RCE, CAE, president and CEO of MLSListings.

"Agents are craving more options to view and access data in their MLS. We are thrilled to partner with MLSListings and are committed to providing their brokers and agents with modern workflows," says Jonathan Spinetto, COO of Remine.
